WICHITA A COLD TOWN.

A man writes this complaint to the Eagle: Wichita is fast becoming the coldstandpoint, but the way in which the per ple of Wichita give went to their feelings. One would imagine that they had none whatever. The finest musicales, operas affects and theatre companies come here and plause which in other places nearly takes the roof off is quite lacking or only very feeble here. Then the speciators leave and say that it was not what they had expected. No performer can give forth his best efforts unless encouraged. The other night at the Pain fireworks display the applause was about as loud as a dog's growl. At no time when news was 'reany particular enthusiasm upon the parof those who stood for hours in front of ball games, and it's the same way.
